Honors Lecture - 13512 - UH 101 - 001

This course is designed to assist students who have no previous experience in learning piano in acquiring piano skills in a group lesson setting. The class is meeting at the Keyboard Lab in Mason Hall. Throughout the duration of the course, the instructor will introduce new musical concept with some selected piano music from the textbook. Students will need to submit a video recording of 3-4 assigned short piano music through the Canvas with 10 days of preparation period for weekly recording assignment. There will be a midterm exam and final exam playing some assigned music from the textbook as well. As the most important instructional activity, students are required to practice piano at least 30-40 minutes a day. By the completion of this course, students will be able to identify pitches in bass and treble clefs, demonstrate an understanding of rhythmic notation and meter, play chords, and piano play music both hands together expressing musical markings such as dynamic and articulations. It is recommended, but not required, that students have some prior knowledge and understanding of reading music or playing an instrument before registering for this course. ### Honors Book Club - 13511 - UH 202 - 001

Marlon James' Black Leopard, Red Wolf reappropriates the epic fantasy conventions of J.R.R. Tolkien and George R.R. Martin and recenters them within a "vast playground of African myth and history and legend." The novel challenges the meaning by exploring such themes as the foundations of reality; the limitations of authority; the excesses of greed, appetite, and political ambition; the fluidity of gender, sexuality, and identity; and the principles of responsibility and righteousness. Students will explore how James both mirrors and deconstructs Eurocentric conventions of fantasy and sci-fi narrative; the African oral storytelling and poetry that James draws upon in the novel; and how the text fits within the larger philosophy of Afrofuturism that has been steadily gaining popularity since the release of Marvel's Black Panther film.

Honors Book Club - 13513 - UH 202 - 002

From Dolly Parton to Outkast to Jason Isbell and more, this cross-disciplinary course will explore music of the South through songs and other media that addresses music. Students will use literary skills to close read lyrics and critical thinking skills to investigate the many layers of Southern identity embedded within a variety of artists in different musical genres. The class will discuss how music has helped to shape Southern identities- and how Southern identities have benefitted music and musicians across genres as well.

Honors Special Topics: Interdisciplinary - 13510 - UH 300 - 001

This course is designed to introduce students to the historical origins of mystery, the Victorian codification of many of the tropes which have come to typify that genre, and the current true crime trends. We will read many brief canonical texts and study the way that once-sensational crime motifs have disseminated into mainstream popular culture.
